Resume Mastery Tips

Achievements and Metrics

- Impact-Oriented: Focus on the impact of your work. Use metrics and data to highlight achievements.
  - Example: "Increased sales by 30% over two years through targeted marketing strategies."

LinkedIn Tips

Leveraging LinkedIn Groups

Active Participation: Join groups relevant to your industry, interests, and career goals. Participate actively by sharing insights, commenting on discussions, and starting your own threads.

Group Leadership: Consider creating and managing your own LinkedIn group. This can establish you as a thought leader and create a community around your area of expertise.

Interview Tips

Closing the Interview

Summarize Your Fit

Key Points Recap: Briefly summarize the key points that make you an ideal candidate for the role. Reiterate your enthusiasm for the position and the company.

Ask Insightful Questions: Prepare thoughtful questions that show your deep interest in the role and the company. For example:

What are the biggest challenges the team is facing right now?

Can you describe the typical career path for someone in this role?

Body Language Tips

Positioning Your Body: Position your body to face the person you're speaking to. This shows that you're giving them your full attention and are engaged in the conversation.

Avoid Defensive Poses: Refrain from using defensive poses like crossing your arms or legs. Instead, keep an open stance to signal that you're receptive and approachable.

British English Vs American English

British English and American English are the two primary variants of the English language, and they have some differences in terms of vocabulary, spelling, grammar, and pronunciation

Health and Medicine: Terms related to health and medicine can vary:

- British English: "chemist" (pharmacy), "surgery" (doctor's office)
- American English: "pharmacy," "doctor's office" or "clinic"

I am just out of a #Careerdiscussion call with Pratyush Kumar. His guidance on elevating the career by connecting with people, building networks, learning & unlearning has thrown light to my vague mind. I cant thank enough for the time he spent for this discussion and insights he provided during this call for self development. I always think Sky is the limit for #learning, but I was not sure where to start being in a new country and new culture. This call has helped me in that. Thanks a lot Pratyush Kumar ji!
